Building Bridges to Advance Policy & Action in Occupational Health & Safety

Engage with members of the APHA Occupational Health and Safety Section to discuss the APHA policy process, identify ways to strengthen partnerships and seek action to protect worker health at local, state and federal levels.

The purpose of this mid- year event is to improve our understanding of the APHA policy - making process and policy implementation to advance occupational health, equity and well-being for ALL workers. We welcome all members, and non-members, to come participate in a conversation to explore the relevance, use and feasibility of an APHA policy on decent work- perceptions, gaps and opportunities for a future agenda.

Learning objectives:

- Explain the development of APHA policies, including time line of action and review.
- Describe the history of OHS policies and how they were developed and implemented to protect worker health and safety.
- List ways to use OHS policies in action with workers, government, industry, advocates, students and colleagues.
- Discuss relevance, use and feasibility of an APHA policy on decent work.

Presented in collaboration with APHA OHS Section, the Great Lakes Center for Occupational Health and Safety at the University of Illinois Chicago and the Northwest Center for Occupational Health and Safety at the University of Washington.

Creating APHA Policy on Decent Work

The goal of this session is to have a conversation about the relevance, use and feasibility of a new APHA policy on decent work. Many issues surround the concept of decent work and extend beyond occupational health. How do we best integrate these new ideas? What is decent work? Who defines it? What partners and collaborations are needed to develop the policy? These questions and more will be discussed in break out rooms.

Lead and Facilitator: Preethi Pratap, PhD, Division of Environmental and Occupational Health Sciences, Great Lakes Center for Occupational Health and Safety, University of Illinois at Chicago School of Public Health.
