

Green Cleaning in Healthcare: Current Practices and Questions for Future Research

Authors: Xiaobo Quan, Anjali Joseph, Matthew Jelen,
The Center for Health Design

Available at Healthcare Without Harm Website:
<https://noharm-uscanada.org/documents/green-cleaning-healthcare-current-practices-and-questions-future-research>

US & Canada

Make a Donation

Login Text Only

HOME ABOUT ISSUES & PROGRAMS GET INVOLVED NEWS ROOM BLOG RESOURCES

Home > Green Cleaning in Healthcare: Current Practices and Questions for Future Research

Issues & Programs

Restorative Health Care ▶

Healthy Food in Health Care ▶

Toxic Materials ▶

Safer Chemicals ▶

Green Building and

Green Cleaning in Healthcare: Current Practices and Questions for Future Research

Document Type: PDF | Language: English

Tags: research collaborative, toxic materials, cleaners, asthma

Environmental cleaning plays a key role in preventing healthcare associated infections (HAIs). But many current cleaning practices in healthcare may negatively impact human health and the environment. Green cleaning is a new, promising approach to environmental cleaning that aims at

Appendix III. Selected Materials From the Facilities