

UW@NAOEM

THE UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON AT THE
NORTHWEST ASSOCIATION OF OCCUPATIONAL AND ENVIRONMENTAL MEDICINE
2013 ANNUAL MEETING

September 27–29, 2013
Hotel Vintage Plaza, Portland, Oregon

The University of Washington Department of Environmental and Occupational Health Sciences (DEOHS) is participating in the Northwest Association of Occupational and Environmental Medicine annual meeting. The DEOHS will sponsor several presentations to provide guidance to clinicians on managing injured workers and successfully returning them to work. The purpose of these presentations is review evidence-based best practices that are patient-centered, cost-effective, and improve return-to-work outcomes. The following speakers are sponsored by the University of Washington's NIOSH-funded Northwest Center for Occupational Health and Safety.

To register for the conference, visit:
<http://www.naoem.org/>

For more information about the DEOHS
continuing education
programs, visit:
<https://osha.washington.edu/>

Best Practices for Returning Injured Workers to Work

September 27; 8:00 AM

"Best Practices For Return to Work"

June Spector, MD, MPH, Assistant Professor

Department of Environmental and Occupational Health Sciences

September 28; 8:45 AM

"The Opioid Epidemic: Causes and Cures"

Gary Franklin, MD, Medical Director

Office of the Medical Director; Dept of Labor and Industries

September 28; 4:15 PM

"Managing Workers' Return to Work Expectations"

Robert Mootz, DC, Associate Medical Director

Office of the Medical Director; Dept of Labor and Industries

